

Resilient Cities Asia-Pacific 2015

The 1st Asia-Pacific Forum on Urban Resilience and Adaptation

11-13 February 2015 | Bangkok, Thailand

Where local impacts find a world of solutions

The Resilient Cities Asia-Pacific 2015 Congress, hosted by Bangkok Metropolitan Administration and organised by ICLEI – Local Governments for Sustainability, will offer cities from Asia-Pacific a variety of innovative solutions that build resilience to climate change specific threats.

The event, drawing on the success of Resilient Cities - The Annual Global Forum on Urban Resilience and Adaptation taking place in Bonn, Germany, since 2010, will:

- Help local governments mainstream resilience considerations into policy and practice
- Promote concerted and coordinated urban resilience action in Asia-Pacific
- Facilitate integration between science, policy and practice
- Discuss the creation of an Asia-Pacific Mayors' Council on Climate Change as a regional advocacy movement of local governments that supports related global efforts
- Explore opportunities for increasing partnerships between local governments, donor communities and the private sector

Resilient Cities Asia-Pacific 2015 will attract around 200 participants from Asia-Pacific and beyond, including mayors, high ranking city officials, representatives from development and UN agencies, researchers as well as potential financiers. The event will offer a combination of high-level plenaries and technical sessions on financing mechanisms, green growth, health, climate & biodiversity, regional cooperation, Urban Nexus, linkages to Disaster Risk Reduction (DRR) and much more, as well as networking opportunities with local government leaders and a range of international experts.

Resilient Cities Asia-Pacific 2015 is supported by a number of prestigious partners:
